Culture Profile

Each family has its own culture.

- Family culture comes from the larger society.
  For instance, some traditions, like special holidays, and styles, like fashions in clothing, may come from the country, the region, or the neighborhood in which you live.
- Family culture comes from ethnicity, race, or national background.
  For instance, an Italian-American family may cook foods from their country of origin.
- Family culture is shaped by the family itself.
  For instance, a family may have its own Saturday morning routines, or its way of celebrating birthdays.

What is your family culture? Write about it.

1. A place (or places) that I associate with my family culture:

2. A special holiday and how we celebrate it:

3. Food we love to eat:

4. Something we do together:

5. Something I especially like about my family culture:
